AN UNANSWERED QUESTION.

Why Do Cats' Eyes Shine In the Dark?

Why do cats' eyes shine in the dark while men's eyes do not? The author of "Idle Days In Patagonia" raises this question without answering it. He shot and wounded an eagle owl, and the sight of the bird, he says, was one of the greatest surprises with which nature overgrown with grass and tall thither Mr. Hudson went to and found him upon his him, but hunters of specimens have a way of hardening their hearts. Mr.

Hudson fired. The owl swerved on his perch, remained suspended for a few moments and then slowly fluttered down.

He says:

I found my victim stung to fury by his wounds and ready for the last struggle. Egan expressed a big-glelike bird, now in the uncertain light he looked gigantic in size—a monster of strange form and terrible aspect.

Each particular feather stood on end,

the tawny barred tail spread out like a fan, the immense tiger colored wings wide open and rigid, so that as the bird, that had clutched the grass with his great feathered claws, swayed slowly from side to side—just as a snake about to strike a man in the head, or as an angry, watchful cat moves its first step of one, then of the other wing touched the ground.

The black horns stood erect, while in the center of the wheel shaped head the beak snapped incessantly, producing a sound like the clicking of a sewing machine. This was a suitable setting for the pair of magnificent, furious eyes, on which I gazed with a kind of fascination, not unmingled with fear, when I remembered the agony suffered on former occasions from sharp, crooked talons driven into me to the bone.

The irides were of a bright orange color, but every time I attempted to approach the bird they kindled into great globes of quivering yellow flame, the black pupils being surrounded by a scintillating orange light which threw out minute yellow sparks into the air. Then retired from the bird, this preternatural fiery aspect would instantly vanish.

The question as to the cause of this fiery appearance is one hard to answer.

We know that the source of the luminosity in owls' and cats' eyes is the light reflecting membrane between the retina and the sclerotic coat of the eyeball, but the mystery remains. When with the bird, I particularly noticed that every time I retired the scintillating membrane

WAKE UP?

If you wake up in the morning with a bitter or bad taste in your mouth, Languor, Dull Headache, Dependancy, Constipation, take Simmons Liver Regulator. It corrects the bilious stomach, sweetens the breath and cleanses the furred tongue. Children as well as adults sometimes eat something that does not digest well, producing Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Restlessness, or Sleeplessness—a good dose of Regulator will give relief. So perfectly harmless is this remedy that it can be taken by the youngest infant or the most delicate person without injury, no matter what the condition of the system may be. It can do no harm if it does no good, but its reputation for 40 years proves it never fails in doing good.

THE PENSION BUSINESS.

The report of the Pension Bureau shows that on June 30th, 1893, there were 966,512 pensioners on the lists of the bureau. The amount appropriated for the payment of the pensions is $186,000,000, which may or may not be sufficient. These reports were made twenty-eight years after the last shot was fired in the war, and it is the highest number that has ever been on the pension rolls in this or any other country.

It is surmised that the climax has been reached in the pension business and that henceforth there will be a falling off of from 30,000 to 40,000 a year by deaths, remarriages and minor children attaining their majority. As the war ended over twenty-eight years ago children born long afterwards must necessarily be drawing pensions. General Garfield, when a member of Congress in 1879, in advocating an increase of the appropriation for pensions to $29,000,000, stated that the pension list would naturally grow smaller year by year from that time forward. The rolls to-day show how easily it was for a man, who a year later was elected President of the United States, to make mistakes.

In reply to inquiries from the Senate, Commissioner Lockman gave the number of pensions granted during the year ending September 1, 1893, was 55,244, of which 9,187 were under the general law and 46,057 under the act of 1890. The number rejected in the same period was 56,702. Under the act of March 1, 1893, the pensions of 3,856 persons residing outside the jurisdiction of the United States were suspended since July 1, 1893. Of 10,782 cases suspended under the act of 1890 payment had been resumed in 6,972 cases up to October 7, 1893.

The supplementary report of the Commissioner does not indicate a falling off in the number of pensioners, as 55,244 names have been added to the rolls in the last year, which will doubtless exceed the decrease by at least 20,000.

Undoubtedly there are thousands of undeserving persons drawing pensions from the Government, and thousands who are entitled to pensions who do not receive a cent.

BOULELLE'S MISSTATEMENTS.

Congressman Boulelle, who waved the tattered and faded bloody shirt in the House of Representatives last Tuesday in a futile attempt to divert the attention of the people from the living issues of to-day to those that were settled at Appomattox a generation ago, knocked all the force out of his herange by willfully misstating facts. In a frantic appeal to prejudice, he shouted, "Not a Union soldier sits about the Cabinet table." This effort to make it appear that war, not Wall street, questions are involved in the present contest in Congress was a miserable failure. His misstatement was corrected by reference to the record, which shows that one of the members of the Cabinet entered the Union army in 1861 and left it with the rank of Major General in 1865 for gallant services.

The fact is the war does not figure in the President's appointments. He selects men for federal positions not because they were in the Union or Confederate army, but because of their attitude on the silver question. He appointed Judge Graham, who was a candidate in 1888 before a Republican National Convention for the nomination of President, to the highest position in his gift and made him his chief adviser, and he selected Hoke Smith, who was a Colonel in the Confederate army, for Secretary of the Interior, thus proving conclusively that he distributes favors impartially between Union men and ex-Confederates. Neither side can justly find fault with him on that score, but his devotion to Wall street has lost him the confidence of the masses, who recognize that the issues of to-day are not the same as those of thirty years ago. A man might have been on the wrong side in the war against slavery and be on the right side in the war against Wall street.

This California Miners' Convention resolved that in view of the scarcity of gold, caused, in part, by the suppression of hydraulic mining, and as the navigable waters of the State are wholly under the control of the general government, it is the imperative duty of Congress to provide for the protection and improvement of the navigable waters by liberal appropriations and thereby assist the miners in the prosecution of a legitimate industry.

At the municipal election in Indianapolis last Tuesday the Republicans elected the Mayor, Clerk, Police Judge and six Councilmen-at-large by majorities approximating 3,000, reversing a Democratic plurality of 2,722 two years ago. The issues involved were of a local character and the result has no political significance, as in Congress there is very little difference between the Republicans and Democrats on the paramount question of the day.

The London Tablet says events now transpiring in Italy renders the Pope's position one of imminent danger. Italy is too insecure to make her a safe guardian of the person of the Pope and the documents which are the heritage of the Catholic world.

THE FIGHT FOR SILVER.

Senator Allen Speaks for Twelve and a Half Hours.

GEARY'S ELOQUENT PLEA.

Strong Evidence Secured Against Pat Collins.

THE FIGHT FOR SILVER.

Senator Allen Talked All Night and Beat the Record.

WASHINGTON, October 12.—The continuous session by which the advocates of the repeal hoped to crush the silver men, does not have the desired effect. Senator Allen (Populist) of Nebraska took the floor against repeal and held it all night long, interrupted by occasional ill-tempered colloquy or roll-call, which dragged the sleeping Senators from adjoining cloak rooms. Gray dawn at 6 A. M. found Allen still holding the fort in the great struggle against unconditional repeal, as he had been doing since last night. He had BROKEN ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS. For twelve hours and a half he held the floor continuously. The longest time any Senator had previously occupied the floor was on the occasion of the Force bill fight in 1891, when Faulkner remained on guard twelve hours, but the latter had a breathing spell during the absence of a quorum.

Allen seemed almost as fresh as when he began. His voice was still loud and strong and the great strain seemed not to have affected his physical or mental vigor. An effort was made shortly after opening by the anti-silver men to reach an agreement with the silverites for a recess until 10 o'clock, but the latter declined the offer. As the hours passed Senator Allen's powers of endurance amazed his auditors.

NO QUORUM.

Shortly after 7 A. M. Shoup made a point of no quorum. Roll call developed the presence of only forty members, three short of a quorum, three, however, were soon supplied.

Wolcott made a point that forty-three was not a quorum, as Idaho, Wyoming and Washington were only partly represented, and forty-three would not be a majority without their full representation. The rule was then read to the effect that a majority of Senators chosen and sworn shall constitute a quorum.

Manderson said the present law was adopted under stress of circumstances in 1864, when 18 Southern States were unrepresented, but contended that the necessity for it was past.

Vice President Stevenson ruled that the Senate as constituted was composed of 85 members and that 43 was a quorum.

Wolcott appealed from the decision. Hale moved to lay the appeal on the table and the motion prevailed by a vote of 38 to 5.

MARTIN TO THE RESCUE.

It was 9 o'clock when Martin began his plea for the free coinage of silver. At frequent intervals he was interrupted by demands for roll calls when it became evident that a quorum was not in the chamber. During one of the intervals Stewart read a letter warning him to desist in obstructing legislation, or he might be blown up with dynamite.

THE SILVER MEN CHEERFUL. The program of the silver men is to have Teller or Jones follow Martin and Stewart follow them. They assert that they are in a position to go on indefinitely, and that the physical endurance question having been forced on them, they are determined to carry it to a legitimate conclusion. Stewart, Jones, Pugh, Morgan and other silver men, who were not present last night, but taking their regular rest, came in this morning, while Teller, Wolcott, Dubois and others in the chamber all night, went home to sleep and rest. They have the best of the situation, as they only need enough men to keep the talk going, while the opponents of silver must at all times be ready to muster a quorum. In this the silver men do not aid them, as they decline to respond on roll calls to establish a quorum.

Geary's Eloquent Plea.

WASHINGTON, October 12.—Geary made a brilliant speech in the House against the McCrea substitute for the present Chinese Exclusion law. He was in fine voice and held the attention of members both by manner and matter of his arguments.

It was pronounced the most effective speech delivered in the House on the Chinese subject for years. It will undoubtedly have a good effect in opening the eyes of Eastern members to the true Chinese situation on the Pacific Coast. But a small number of them have any real appreciation of the gravity of the Chinese problem.

Geary was frank and fearless in speaking of the neglect of the Administration to carry out the Exclusion Act. He scored the Chinese Minister, and his keen thrusts at McCrea and Everett were greatly enjoyed by his fellow-members.

Very Strong Evidence.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 12.—The last link in the evidence connecting Pat Collins with the murder of his wife, Monday morning was secured yesterday in the form of the bloody jumper worn by him when he stabbed his wife to death.

Detective John Seymour, who has the case in charge, found the garment in the house of a scavenger named Louis Nonche, out in the Mission, and it has been positively identified by several men who saw Collins wearing it on the morning of the murder.

It will be remembered that a man named Homer Shirliff gave Collins a shirt at Wise's saloon, and that he changed it for the jumper there, returning later and taking away the latter. It was found yesterday that he threw it into a yard on Howard street, near Tenth, and it was put in the ash barrel, which the scavenger took away.

Ready to Dig for Gold.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 12.—A committee of the unemployed having headquarters at the sandlot, consisting of John Farquharson, Edwin Bennett and C. R. Welsh, waited on T. H. Goodman, General Passenger and Ticket Agent of the Southern Pacific railroad to obtain the rate at which a box car could be secured to carry twenty-five men to Marysville. There are a number of unemployed who are desirous of following the suggestion made by John Crew that the old placers on the American and Feather rivers be worked over. The car will, no doubt, be given them at a low rate. Now the committee is in search of Mr. Crew.

Tramps Headed for California.

ASHLAND, Or., October 12.—This place has been overrun with tramps for the past three weeks, the greater number going south. So far no violence has been committed by them beyond the robbing of henroosts. To-night a body of ninety-five tramps marched up to the business part of town on the arrival of the freight train from the north and demanded food of the Marshal. They will probably leave for California on the freight train in the morning.

Telegraphic Notes.

A fire at Sioux City, Iowa, yesterday, destroyed several business buildings. The loss is estimated at over $100,000.

It is announced that though the World's Fair will be officially closed October 31st it will be kept open until late in the winter.

A terrific storm is raging on the Atlantic coast from Florida north. The signal service predicts it will be the worst storm for years.

Wilbur, Jackson & Co. and Sheldon, Binney & Co. of Providence, R. I., two of the heaviest banking and brokerage firms of the State, have suspended.

Two schooners were wrecked north of Mendocino, Cal., yesterday. One, the Corinthian, went on the rocks, the crew escaping in boats; the other, the Albion, is on the beach. Captain Hansen of the Albion was drowned.

In the House yesterday the McCrea amendment to the Geary act was discussed. Eastern members, as a rule, are opposed to enforcing the exclusion act and it is probable that the amendment, which extends the time for Chinese registration six months, will pass.

TOWN ORDINANCE NO. 41.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND AN ORDINANCE entitled, "An Ordinance to Amend Town Ordinance No. 36 of the Town of Reno, entitled 'An Ordinance to fix and collect a license tax upon certain trades and business in the town of Reno,' adopted March 1st, 1892, adopted Sept. 4, 1893.

By virtue of the power and authority conferred by the laws of the State of Nevada, the Board of County Commissioners of Washoe county, Nevada, do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. Section one of said amendatory ordinance is hereby amended to read as follows:

SECTION 1. Every person, firm or association engaged in selling goods, wares, merchandise or other personal property at auction or public outcry (except persons making such sales under an execution, or other order of Court), shall pay quarterly for a license to sell, or for a monthly license, (which shall date from the first day of the month in which such license is issued) of two hundred and fifty dollars, or by the day, for each and every day, that he or they shall be engaged in said business, twenty-five dollars; provided, however, that all persons having second-hand household goods and live stock may sell or cause to be sold at public auction or outcry without obtaining a license therefor.

Section 2 of said amendatory ordinance is amended so as to read as follows:

Every person, firm, association or corporation having a fixed place of business, and not otherwise mentioned or enumerated, dealing in goods, wares and merchandise shall pay a quarterly license of three dollars.

NEVADA A GREAT STATE.

Visitors to the Columbian Exposition Coming to That Conclusion.

The current number of the Irrigation Age contains an article on the resources and capabilities of this State, published under the heading, "Is Nevada a Great State After All?" The following extracts are taken from the article, which is two lengthy to be published in its entirety:

Here is a striking anomaly that forces itself upon the attention of the millions at the World's Fair: No State in the union has been more belittled and abused than Nevada—no State in the union makes a more complete or creditable exhibit of the farm, of the mine and of the natural resources than this same Nevada.

This anomaly staggers a good many people who have been taught to believe that Nevada has no possible future and that it is utterly devoid of the elements which fit a community for statehood. The truth is that if half a million people were shut up to the north-northern, the first morning of the twentieth century would see there a great State. It would be great not merely on one production but in many. It would have a widespread and diversified agricultural industry, more profitable to individuals than in most other parts of the world. It would have a thriving mining industry, by no means limited to one class of production. It would support a score of manufacturing industries working upon raw material taken from its mountains and farms. It would have many new lines of railroad and many large towns. The exhibit at the World's Fair gives the lie to the assertion that Nevada is fit only for a cattle range and a mining camp. It proves beyond all question that this State of the Sierras is capable of supporting a large population, of developing a well rounded and prosperous industrial life, and of adding new splendid territory to the domain of civilization.

In one respect the Nevada exhibit is unique. Mr. Yerington was appointed commissioner March 15, 1893. Up to that time nothing had been done in the collection of the material for an exhibit. Just one month from the day of his appointment he started from Carson to Chicago, with everything now on exhibition from his State in the departments of agriculture, mining, chemicals, forestry and anthropology. In these thirty days Mr. Yerington covered 2200 miles of Nevada soil, ransacked the State for specimens of its production in all departments, and managed to get together an exhibit complete and highly creditable in every detail. When Idaho's agriculture trophies were destroyed by fire in transit he promptly applied for its space in the agricultural building, and erected one of the most artistic and pleasing booths, which he filled with his display of irrigated products. The accomplishment of the work of two or three years in thirty days, with the small appropriation of $10,000, was a feat that surprised and delighted the managers of the exposition, and ought to be highly appreciated by the people of Nevada.

AGRICULTURAL NEVADA.

Nevada is known as a mining community and as very little else. Its mineral resources are important and that department of its exhibit is interesting but it is with agricultural and irrigated Nevada that readers of the Age are chiefly concerned. The World's Fair visitor expresses no surprise at beholding a complete display of the products of the mine, but thousands of people have stood before the Nevada booth in the agricultural building and rubbed their eyes before fully believing that they read the name aright. They are surprised to learn that the State has an agricultural industry at all; they are more surprised when they look carefully and observe the extraordinary quality of the cereals. As the world has so often been told that Nevada has no future and it is in a way to be abandoned in the end to the Piute Indians, they are surprised to see its agricultural possibilities vividly illustrated and aggressively presented for consideration.

PRESENT STATE OF THE INDUSTRY.

Nothing in this article should be construed to mean that Nevada has taken large advantages of the opportunities in the development of agriculture. Its people admit that they have not done so, and explain it by saying that the hundreds of millions taken from their mines have gone to beautify the aristocratic quarters of San Francisco and New York, rather than to fertilize and fructify the soil of the State that produced them. Mr. F. H. Newell's instructive census bulletin on Nevada shows precisely what has been done. In the census year 224,400 acres were irrigated. The average size of the farm was 192 acres, and the average value of products $12.92 per acre. The number of irrigators was 1,167. These figures reveal the truth about the agriculture of the State. Prosperous irrigated farms, where scientific and intensive cultivation are practiced, do not average as high as 192 acres each. Nor does the value of their product run as low as $12.92 per acre. The fact is that in Nevada, as in some other parts of the arid region, irrigation is principally nothing but an adjunct of the stock business. It exists as a means of supplying winter feed for cattle and sheep. That is not reclamation in its high, true sense. Small, diversified farms, watered and cultivated on scientific principles, would make a very different showing in Nevada. This is one of the facts abundantly demonstrated by the fair.

Such farms will be worth nearer $100 than $41 per acre, the figure giving in Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

NEVADA'S MINING INDUSTRY.

There is less need of directing attention to Nevada's mining industry. Mining is an industry which furnishes its own impetus. There was no difficulty in finding settlers for California after Marshall had picked up the nugget of gold at Sutter's mill. The alluring hope of sudden wealth is a magnet that always draws men and money. The more the mining industry flourishes, the greater the home market will be for the products of irrigated farms, and the more readily will capital be obtained for the construction of irrigation works. While Nevada's mineral wealth is well known, it is very likely that many fail to appreciate its full proportions. The State stands second only to California in the total value of precious metals produced from 1848 to 1891. California's figure is $1,289,823,000, and Nevada's $587,381,515. Then follow Colorado, Montana, Utah and Idaho at a considerable interval behind the battle-born State. The total yield of the State in 1892 was about $3,500,000, and yet the development of mining possibilities has scarcely begun. Outside of the precious metals there are other resources of greater importance. The base metals, building stones and other valuable deposits have not begun to be utilized commercially, except in the most limited degree. These things remain as assets for the future to realize upon.

Commissioner Yerington was too late to obtain ground floor space for his mining exhibit, but he secured a conspicuous position in the gallery of the mining building and filled it with a wonderful collection of Nevada's mineral product. Everything in the broad range of the State's mineral resources is here shown to a splendid advantage. There has just been received and placed on exhibition specimens of gold from the Oest mine at Silver City, Nev., where four men recently realized $24,000 in the yellow metal in twenty-seven days.

A writer in Current Literature says that the best of all the mineral exhibits at the World's Fair is from Nevada. It says: "The collection does not contain a piece of ore in which pure metal is not to be seen lying in little chunks on the surface ready to be picked or twisted in wire from through the entire rock. Silver is shown in the ores in all its forms, native, black metal, wire, ruby chloride and bromide. There are bits of gold ore, no larger than one's fists together that are valued at $800. On other pieces of ore it requires only the application of a little cleansing acid to reveal pure gold. One remarkable specimen shows gold and silver ore together in a piece of iron ore. From the Hawthorne mining district are specimens of ore that run $200,000 a ton."

THE PRE-HISTORIC EXHIBIT.

Nothing shown at the World's Fair from any part of the wide world has excited deeper interest than the prehistoric exhibit of Nevada. This occupies a space of 19x40 feet in the west gallery of the anthropological building and is a reproduction of a section of the Nevada State Prison quarry, situated one and one-half miles southeast of Carson City, at the base of the foothills of the Pine Nut range of mountains. The walls of the quarry rise to a height of from twelve to thirty-two feet and surround an excavation on three sides covering an area of two acres. Upon the floor of this excavation are found the distinct imprints of what are supposed to be the tracks of a human being and by others that of a sloth. The tracks of the elephant are not disputed, as the remains of the mammoth were uncovered and the teeth of the elephant are also exhibited as they were found imbedded in the sandstone. The hippo bone is also exhibited together with the jawbone of the horse, hyena, taurus or mammoth wader.

The entire exhibit is surrounded by a railing from which is suspended large photographs showing the situation of the various prints, and also their relative depths from the surface. In a glass case are two human relics found eighteen feet under the surface and of Indian origin, having been used for sharpening arrows; shells and petrifications of wood, found in the various strata of the walls. This exhibit is a most attractive one, as will be seen by the throngs of people constantly studying it.

On Chicago day at the World's Fair the attendance was 751,026 and the gate receipts $356,823.

Frost and the Flowers.

The late cold and storm has closed the life for 1893 of those pleasant and cheerful house companions, the flowers. They have wrapped their mantles prepared by nature about them and retired to rest—but there is a hope remaining that the flowers are not passed away. The chrysanthemum, that blooms so fresh and fair when "chill November's surly blasts" are upon us, will in due time make their appearance in nature's closing scene in the flower drama of summer, and when the chrysanthemums have made their appearance their presence will teach us from the great book of nature a lesson full of hope and comfort. The lesson then present will teach us that when we are wrapping about us in the closing scene in the drama of life the mantle prepared by the frosts of time, that the chrysanthemums will bloom around us in the form of friends who have gone before us, giving a parting joy and happy welcome to everlasting flower gardens on the other side.

For cure of headache, constipation and indigestion try electric bitters—entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded. Price 50 cts. and $1.00 per bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

Reckless Railroad.

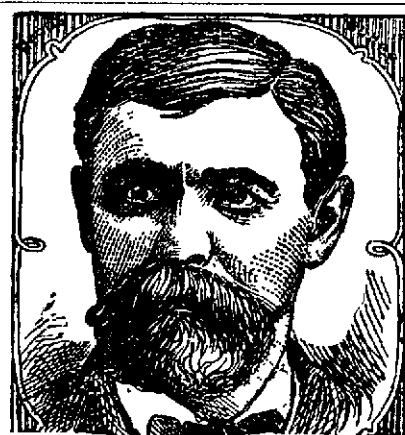

A band of armed men, about sixty-five in number, captured a Southern Pacific train in Texas and run it on their own schedule, their destination being Alabama. It was a question of work or starvation, they said. They levied tribute for provisions on their way. The avoidance of collisions puzzled the dispatchers. When the party reached Houston, forty were captured. The others got away, but are being pursued.

A Marriage.
